Start your own business

ON FRIDAY July 4, the Area Allowance will be launched by Eamon O'Cuiv TD at Peacocks, Maam Cross at 3pm.

The Area Allowance is a support scheme for people which allows them to retain their social welfare payments while setting up their own businesses. The scheme is administered by the Department of Social Welfare with payments being made directly to the participants. In order for the participants to apply, they must have been out of work for 12 months and in receipt of unemployment benefit or lone parent benefit.

The scheme involves 100 per cent retention of unemployment or lone parent benefits for a period of 12 months. Following this initial period, the recipient has automatic entitlement to the Back To Work allowance.

Through the BTW, support can be provided for a further three year period. For years two, three and four, the recipients will receive 75, 50, and 25 per cent of their benefit respectively.

The three Area Based Partnerships in County Galway who are seeking applications for the Area Allowance are:

Cumas Teo,

Support for Galway airport

GALWAY AIRPORT has taken a step closer towards improving runway facilities with the announcement that its interests are to be promoted by the Minister for Transport, Energy and Communications.

Galway Airport has broadly welcomed the news, describing it as a significant breakthrough for the committee of the airport which has been campaigning for funds for a number of years.

"We're quite optimistic that this latest announcement will bring us closer to the increase in funding which we've been campaigning for for so long," said Ed Moran, manager of Galway Airport.

Development at Galway airport at Carnmore has long been hampered by a consistent lack of funding at all levels and has been threatened with being left behind by its inability to handle larger aircraft, according to sources.

However, Moran was quick to point out that the announcement was not a guarantee of immediate expansion for the airport - "the airport authority still needs to find a certain proportion of the expenditure before we receive any significant cash injection

"The airport is constantly trying to update its facilities and is always subject to an ongoing development plan that we are constantly revising," he said.
